Sojourner Truth was the	because they had been sold.
The slaves slept on	changed her name to Sojourner.
Sojourner didn't know many of her siblings	in the home of Quaker friends.
Her mother taught her	boards covered with straw.
Her master promised her freedom,	she went to court to get him back.
Isabella slept in a bed for the first time	was named in her honor.
When her 5 year old son was sold	daughter of slaves in the state of New York.
Her father Bomefree was eventually	but he went back on his word.
Isabella's special place to pray	was a little island in the middle of a stream.
When she left New York she	deserted and died alone in a shanty.
She gave a famous speech	about God and to be good and honest.
The Mars probe Sojourner	called "Ain't I a Woman?".
